PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE

The 18th New England Regional Genealogical Conference (NERGC) 2025: New Englanders Here, There, and Everywhere is fast approaching and will be October 29 through November 1, 2025 at the DoubleTree by Hilton, 700 Elm St., Manchester, N.H. Be sure to look for any updates on the NERGC website www.nergc.org. The updated conference brochure is available for download www.nergc.org/wp-content/uploads/2025/05/Brochure-for-2025-Conference.pdf. GSV will produce the daily conference newsletter and have a booth in the Exhibit Hall. We will also hold our annual business meeting at NERGC, as the conference coincides with date we would generally have a Fall Membership Meeting. This will be about 15 minutes in length and will be held in the evening between the regular sessions and the banquet on Saturday of the conference. The conference newsletter will contain room information and the exact time, etc.

GSV's sponsored speaker at NERGC will be Michael F. Dwyer, FASG, who will speak on "French-Canadian Names Lost in Vermont." Michael's presentation will be on Friday October, 31st at 9:45 a.m. Please note the change in day and time from the printed version of the brochure. For those of you who missed Michael's fascinating talk at our Spring Membership Meeting at the Rutland Historical Society on May 3rd, he will cover the same material. In the 1990 U.S. Census, 29% of Vermonters disclosed French-Canadian or French as an ethnicity. Early immigrants to Vermont often lost their original first and last names in the process of assimilation. As a result, research to ancestors born in Canada faced a brick wall. The presentation illustrates dozens of case studies and the steps taken to discover hidden identities. It draws upon vital records, cemetery records, newspaper accounts, and extensively from the published church repertoires of the Vermont French Canadian Society which often provide the key to discovering the immigrant's original name. Michael Dwyer is a Fellow of the American Society of Genealogists, a longtime member of the Genealogical Society of Vermont and past editor of Vermont Genealogy. He has published many articles in journals including the Register, American Ancestors, Vermont Genealogy, The Maine Genealogist among others. Named Vermont Teacher of the Year in 2004, he retired from teaching in 2018 and now serves as the Pastor of the Pittsford Congregational Church. He also hosts a monthly television show, "Historically Speaking" on Rutland Regional Television.

Members should have received Vermont Genealogy Spring 2024 [29: 1], Special Publication No. 16, "The History of Fort Dummer and Its Soldiers." Editor, Drew Bartley is currently hard at work on the Fall 2024 [29: 2] issue. If you have the expertise to provide assistance in proofing and/or indexing to help with the production of the journal, please let us know.

As always thank you to the members support GSV through your memberships, purchases and donations. Without your support we would not be able to keep the society running.

Expanded Access to Full-Text Search: Enhancing the Catalog and All-Collections Search

FamilySearch has been testing full-text search for over a year, making improvements that have increased its capability and effectiveness. Even while it is still in development, this powerful new search experience has already helped testers make genealogy discoveries and breakthroughs in their family history research.

With the great potential that full-text search has for uncovering hidden information, the feature is now going to be used to enhance a few key sections of the FamilySearch site, giving our users greater access to previously hard-to-find records. Learn more about full-text search below and how it is being used in the FamilySearch Catalog and in all-collections searching. The section in this article about using full-text search also gives helpful information about how to use this tool and the benefits it has to offer.

What Is Full-Text Search? While FamilySearch has billions of digitized historical records available to browse, only a small portion of them are indexed and searchable. Because of artificial intelligence and handwriting recognition technology, however, records are becoming searchable significantly faster. By searching AI-created transcripts of records, full-text search allows you to find results from unindexed record collections in seconds. Using keywords, names, places, and dates, you can search over 1 billion genealogically significant records in a full-text search that might have been available only as images before. Although searching full transcripts is not exactly the same as searching indexed records, full-text search allows users to find results from any part of the text in a record. This capability is helping thousands of people find relatives in documents they hadn't considered before and discover new evidence in previously unsearchable records.

Where Can I Find the Full-Text Search Tool? While it is still undergoing further improvements in FamilySearch Labs, full-text search is now also available in the all-collections search on the signed-in FamilySearch home page and in the FamilySearch Catalog.

Search for an Ancestor Using the All-Collections Search When you sign in to FamilySearch.org (with a free account), on the right side of your signed-in home page is a search feature with the heading "Search for an Ancestor." This tool looks for your search terms in historical records, family tree profiles, memories, and almost any other database on the FamilySearch website. (You can also go directly to the all-collections search experience here.) When looking at results from the all-collections search, you can choose "Full-Text Search" as one of the filter options in the left side bar. Find the option in the list, and click Full-Text Search. A new window or tab will open, showing results for your search that have become available through AI-generated transcripts. Note: You do have to click Full-Text Search in the sidebar to see results from this database. They do not appear in the main results of the all-collections search.

Full-Text Transcripts in the Catalog The FamilySearch Catalog is a guide to books, records, and other resources available both online and in the FamilySearch Library. Many of these resources are available to browse but still require manual searching for information. As FamilySearch uses AI tools to create full-text transcripts of collections in the catalog, these collections will also become full-text searchable. On FamilySearch.org, you can find the catalog by clicking Search in the top menu and then clicking Catalog. When browsing the catalog, if you find a promising collection, scroll down the page, and check the Film/Digital Notes section for format information. An icon of a document with a plus sign indicates that the collection is full-text searchable. Clicking this icon will bring up a list of all transcripts in that catalog collection and a search form on the right. Entering names and other keywords in the form will allow you to use full-text search on that particular collection instead of having to browse through each record to find names and other information. FamilySearch hopes to add this option to as many catalog collections as possible over time; researchers otherwise may have to look through hundreds of catalog images manually to find what they seek.

Try the Full Experience in FamilySearch Labs Full-text search is still available as an experiment in FamilySearch Labs as we improve features such as filtering results and integrating search results with the FamilySearch Family Tree. We invite you to continue to experiment with full-text search there and to continue to help us improve the experience through your feedback.

To try full-text search in FamilySearch Labs, follow these simple steps:

1. Go to FamilySearch.org/labs, and sign in with your FamilySearch account. (You can also navigate to FamilySearch Labs from the expanded footer on most pages on the FamilySearch site.)
2. On the FamilySearch Labs page, find the Expand Your Search with Full Text box, and click Try It. (Note that after the first time you use this tool, you may see "Go to Experiment" instead of "Try It.")
3. On the full-text search page, type a few details about an ancestor you would like to know more about, and click Search.

Naples, Florida - Mary Jane (MacFarland) Williams, 90, of Naples, Florida, passed on December 10, 2023, after being hospitalized for a short time. She was born November 28, 1933, in New Haven, Connecticut, to Douglas MacFarland and Hazel Armstrong (of Springfield, VT). During her parent's pending divorce in the mid-40s, she was sent to live with her aunt Florence, in Townshend, VT. Somewhat of a tomboy, she loved playing outdoors in all seasons, swimming in the brook, playing with her dogs, and farm animals. She attended Leland & Gray High School and earned many honors and awards, graduating with the class of 1951. She attended Castleton Teachers' College until a blind date led her to the love of her life, Leland Williams of Rutland, VT. She grabbed a hold of him and never let go, marrying a short time later in 1953. Soon after, they moved with several family members to San Diego, CA, where they had 3 children. As they grew, she became involved in many activities. She was President of P.T.A., Girl Scout Leader, Cub Scout Leader, and she taught swimming for the Red Cross. She was a great cook and enjoyed cooking for others. In 1968, the family moved to Borrego Springs, CA, and she began work at First California Bank. In 1975, she became homesick for Vermont and moved the family there to help run the Cooper Hill Lodge near Mt. Snow ski resort. Her next job was working at Vermont National Bank in Brattleboro, VT, where she enjoyed working until she retired. After visiting a favorite cousin, she decided to make the move to Naples, Florida, where she spent the rest of her life. She volunteered at the Naples Botanical Garden and became the volunteer with the second most hours. In the last few years of her life, she spent many hours in her beautiful garden. She loved giving her vegetables away to friends and neighbors.

After her 90th birthday, she experienced pain and after a visit to the emergency room, she was admitted. She was there for a week, had many tests, and in the end, she was too tired to fight anymore. She will be missed by all who knew her.

Mary Jane was preceded in death by her husband, Leland Williams, both parents and a brother, Andrew MacFarland.
